Birthday Dinner and Surprise Party.

On Thursday evening at the Priory—the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar W. Pack—a dinner was given in honor of the birthday of Mrs. C. B. Guenthart. The reception room was made beautiful with masses of carnations and potted ferns, the drawing room and library were festooned with the feathered fronds of the asparagus plamous and jardiners filled with roses were artistically arranged throughout the rooms. In the dining room, with its beautiful shaded light, casting a rich soft glow, was set a low bowl filled with Mâman Crochet roses, the places being marked with the dainty buds of the Cœil Brûlé.

A seven course dinner was served after which a birthday cake was brought in, and presented to Mrs. Guenthart, who decided to cut the cake at her own home.

After dinner the party donned their wraps and were taken for a short auto ride through the streets, the most remote from the Guenthart home.

While the dinner party and auto ride were being indulged in, Miss Bryant, Mrs. Temple and Mrs. Church were preparing at the Guenthart home for about thirty guests to greet the auto party on its return.

At last the car nearing the house, it was deemed advisable to stop and leave the birthday cake. The house was in total darkness, and silent as the night, but when Mr. and Mrs. Guenthart reached the door, a signal was given, the lights were turned on, as the door swung wider open, revealing the merry party within, who showered the surprised ones with bouquets of lovely flowers, accompanied by hearty birthday greetings. Arrangements for playing whist had been made, and soon the happy party were playing with hearts for trumps, with as much concentration as was possible under the circumstances.

The first prize was won by Mrs. W. C. Fraley, a beautiful basket of flowers, the consolation prize fell to the lot of Mrs. Hunt. A bountiful supper was served, consisting of sandwiches, coffee, ice cream and cake.

Many beautiful gifts were received by the surprised hostess, who is a general favorite among the young people of our valley. The memory of this happy evening will linger long in the minds of the participants, whose parting words were "Many, many happy returns."

Mr. J. M. Benedict, who with his family, occupies the home on Third street formerly owned by Mr. Rawlins, has just returned from a two months business trip through Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and Texas. Mr. Benedict represents an Eastern jewelry establishment and reports that the trip just made was the best from a business point of view that he has made in an experience of 24 years.

SHRINER'S DAY.

May 6th was in one sense the biggest day that Glendale has ever known; certainly the crowd that assembled here was the largest we have ever had. It was not as important a gathering as that which met to celebrate the arrival of the electric cars, July 2d, 1904, a day which marked an epoch, but it was a great day.

There was a sombre threat of rain in the early morning, but it did not materialize, and although a little more sunshine would have made the weather more nearly perfect, it was still not far behind our California standard. The Shriners kept coming out on all the cars from 9 o'clock until one, and it is estimated by the railroad people and others that the visitors numbered 5,000. One half of that number were given luncheon at Casa Verdugo according to program. And the program was just, right; there was no attempt at formality and the visitors were left to follow the dictates of their own free wills. The arrangements were well made and equally well executed. The proprietors of Casa Verdugo proved equal to the occasion and turned out tamales and enchilados in some mysterious manner which indicated an inexhaustable supply. About 2500 partook of the luncheon, and, judging from indications, there was no necessity for "cultivating an appetite" for the (to them) new dishes that were set before them. The only thing that could have added to the visitors' enjoyment, would have been a large increase in the number of conveyances with which to show them over the valley. But in regard to this, everybody recognizes the fact that it was nearly impossible to have done much better. The few automobiles did good service and kept whizzing around industriously. While not many of the visitors saw enough of our valley to enable them to feel acquainted with it, there is no doubt but that they all were well impressed and will remember Glendale and Tropico during the rest of their lives. If they have not been inoculated with the microbe of California fever, they are hopelessly immune. Credit is due to Chairman Albright and Mr. Dan Campbell for the admirable arrangements and to the ladies, who with Mrs. Pack and Mrs. Seaman, carried out the decorative and flower bestowing program in a manner leaving nothing to be desired.

Shriners' day at Casa Verdugo was a success.

At Boise, Idaho, trial of Haywood, accused of complicity in murder of former Governor Steunenberg, begins. Difficulty anticipated in securing jury.

Republican party leaders in Ohio generally favor candidacy of Taft for President. Will probably make a formal announcement to that effect next week.

Judge Frank Langdon, of Goldfield, Nevada, presiding at trial of Industrial Works of the World accused of murder, is threatened with death by anonymous writer if accused are convicted.

Strike troubles serious in New York, Chicago and San Francisco. Car service temporarily discontinued in latter city, telephone service crippled. Longshoremen out in New York.

Charles M. Schwab of the United States Steel corporation, in San Francisco. In reference to strike at Union Iron Works, he declares will go out of business other than yield to demands of unions.

Inter-State Commerce Commissioner Clark decides that it will be illegal for railroads to collect two dollars per ticket extra for the benefit of the National Education Association to meet in Los Angeles in July.

THANKS.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to all those who so generously assisted in decorating their homes and business places for "Shriners' Day," Monday, May 6th.

As there was no detailed line of march, no uniformity in decorating could be requested, but the beauty and color of flags and bunting displayed from numerous buildings gave our city a truly holiday attire, most gratifying to the committee.

Mrs. Edgar W. Peck,
Chairman of the Glendale Decorating Committee.

To Our Patrons

Owing to the pressure of job work and the extra effort required to get out our special Shriner edition last week, the News did not get into the post office until Monday. For the delay, we beg the pardon of our patrons. The Shriner's edition was not mailed to our subscribers, but we still have some copies which may be had for the asking. It has one or two features which are unique and valuable, and is not overcrowded, as such issues usually are, with stereotyped notices of our "prominent citizens" at so much per.

The Knocker

We do not know who he is, but he is at work.

There are devious methods of doing business which are practiced by some one in Glendale, that we shall expose when possible to do so. One of the favorite schemes seems to be practiced in reference to certain business concerns. One of our prominent business men has been more or less annoyed for some time past by people who approach him to say that they "have been told that he wants to sell out," etc.

The dodge is an old one, and as stupid as it is old; it really does but little injury to anyone, but it betrays a spirit which should be smothered and methods which should be discouraged.

The Hardships of Genius

Jack London the author, who was recently divorced from one wife in order to marry another, started with his bride on a trip around the world from San Francisco in a small boat recently. Just when about to sail a constable swooped down upon them with an unpaid bill of $247.79 which was due the outfitter for supplies. Fortunately for Jack, he has a sister who came to his rescue and paid the bill.

Mr. London is a writer of weird stories of extreme sombreness, which with his views on Socialism, indicate that he suffers from dyspepsia. The world may be on the lookout for some stirring sentiments in his next work, showing up the tyranny of despotic tradesmen who heartlessly sell things and insist that even men of genius must pay their bills; a theory that is somewhat old fashioned, but has not yet been abandoned in this age of commercialism.

San Francisco

Poor old San Francisco! First the earthquake, then the fire, and then the whirlwind that follows logically the sowing of the wind. The evil day that has been long deferred, when the inevitable contest between the forces of law on one side and the allied hosts of anarchy on the other, must meet in a final struggle, seems near at hand.

The majority of the people of the city on the bay have been content so long to act as if it was a matter of indifference to them whether a tyrannical minority ruled or not, will be compelled to come out into the open and range themselves on one side or the other. When that takes place the contest will not be of long duration. Upon a question of the supremacy of the law, there is never any doubt in this country as to the sentiment of the great middle class who constitute the large majority of our people—that class which are neither professional laborers nor capitalists, but plain everyday American citizens, usually too indifferent as to their duties and privileges, but who, when roused to action, are the court of final appeal. This too long silent majority in San Francisco will soon be forced into action, and the ruinous contest between employers and employees will pass into history. It need scarcely be said that when the contest is over, the individual worker who desires to work will be permitted to do so, whether the contract between himself and his employer is satisfactory to others or not. Upon no other basis can industrial peace be assured, for on any other basis peace is not consistent with the ideas of a free government.

"Undesirable Citizens"

President Roosevelt's letter to Honore Jaxon of Chicago, in reply to one from that gentleman in the capacity of secretary, or something else, of the "Moyer-Heywood League" should endear him more and more to patriotic Americans. If Theodore Roosevelt was anxious to succeed himself as president, he might have yielded to a temptation to avoid trouble, and have refrained from writing as he did; for, in accordance with the usual ideas of political expediency, it was an impolitic act.

The anarchistic element of organized labor arrogates to itself the right to represent all labor that is organized or unorganized. As a matter of fact, it represents nothing of the kind, but with unscrupulous mendacity it misrepresents every issue in which it is engaged, and by means which it uses with utmost skill secures sympathy for any bad cause it may champion from a very large body of well meaning citizens, whose actions are controlled by sympathy given without sufficient thought.

The organization of the league aluded to was unnecessary and inexcusable; the collection of a large sum of money for the alleged purpose of "securing justice," cannot be justified on any ground whatever. It is to be hoped that "justice" is not yet for sale in the open market. The collection of a fund to secure counsel for men accused is perfectly legitimate; but beyond that limit the systematic collection of a large sum of money becomes systematic robbery, for it cannot possibly be used for the purpose named. Moyer and Heywood are accused of a crime which, if proved against them, should hang them as effectually and promptly as any ordinary murderer. If they should be acquitted, the fact would not make them "desirable" citizens, for it can readily be shown that they have for years plotted against law and order.

If a man who sets the law of his own will up against that of organized society is not an "undesirable citizen," we should like to know who is. But

"No rogue e'er felt the halter draw,
With good opinion of the law."

THE GLENDALE NEWS

MR. C'S OWLS.

Mr. C. lives on First street and among other avocations of usefulness, he raises chickens. Now in a community where nearly everybody raises chickens, this fact is not remarkable. Neither is it remarkable that he raises a high grade of chickens; they all do. The eminent respectability of Mr. C.'s chickens, dare not be impugned; anyone who has ever heard of his barred Cochins or his Buff White Leghorns, knows that they are birds without the stain upon their escutcheons. The other night when Mr. C. had hermetically sealed the barn-yard gate and hung out the sign "No trespassers," so as to exclude any curious coyote or wild cat that might perchance wander in from the country and endeavor to paint the town red, he reveled in the thought that nowhere in Glendale—not even in Tropico, was there a mere staid and respectable family of chickens than those which he proudly (with the consent of Mrs. C.) calls his own.

Shortly after dawn the next morning, Mr. C. went out to the henry as usual to administer refreshments to his feathered and featherless charges. An old hen of the blue White Leghorn strain had a nest in the barn, and thither Mr. C. first wended his way. As he opened the barn door, an unusual noise attracted his attention, and glancing upward he saw perched in methodical order upon a cross piece, the most solemn looking old barn owl that ever occurred, and seven superhumanly solemn smaller owls in regular gradations as to size, strung along beside her.

This was a week or more ago and history has been making since then, in Mr. C.'s aviary. The owls have evidently come to stay. They treat the chickens with seeming indifference and occasionally make a bluff at paying rent by catching a mouse or a gopher. But the chickens are not indifferent to the owls. They seem depressed and discouraged. The Pink Plymouth Rock rooster that was the king of the harem, now spends his time in standing "first or one foot, then on to other," with his neck askew and one eye closed, trying to size up the new comers. The problem is beyond him, but he won't give it up. The champion egg layer, a fine old mauve Cochin, has gone completely out of business and scarcely earns her salt. The trouble with the chickens is that the owls sit there looking just as if they knew it all, and the hens, poor things, don't know any better than to believe it, and are discouraged! And that's what troubling Mr. C., too, he doesn't mind the demoralization of his henry so much, although that is bad enough, but he can't stand it to have that old feathered embodiment of the wisdom of Solomon peering down at him from that cross piece day after day, and to see stretched away along into the distance beside it, seven other small Solomons, so evidently knowing everything, although they say nothing! Mr. C. knows that the whole owl combination is a fraud, because it goes without saying, that no combined galaxy of owls can have one millionth part of the wisdom which a single owl by its expression of countenance proclaims itself to possess. Its aggravating to have seven or eight of them sit up there day after day with a silent assertion of supernatural wisdom, which oppresses Mr. C. every time he sees them. And another thing bothers him: How does an owl manage to have seven different size owlets around the family board at one time? Does the female lay one egg at a time, and rear the result before incubating others? We are going to hurl this problem at our man who knows things, as soon as he returns from his vacation. We know Mr. C. to be a philosopher and can only suggest that he bear up and do nothing rash. Meantime we have some good family names for owls. The mamma is Mingry, of course; then comes Solomon, then Johnson, Webster, Worcester or any of the dictionary men, and for light every day purposes, Winkem, Blinkem and Nod!

STUDENTS' CORNER.

A Dip Into Space.

The chief difficulty about astronomical facts is that the bare statement of the sizes and distances of the heavenly bodies conveys little or no definite idea to the mind. That is to say the facts transcend our familiar figures and standards so enormously that "wondering comprehension lags behind," and we listen without realizing, but with a vague and general notion of void immensity. A moderately correct idea, however, of the relative sizes of the members of the solar system, their distances from each other, and their approximate distance from the fixed stars, may be obtained by the construction, in imagination, of a plan on some extended open plain like the Mojave desert. Abandoning the hard language of mathematics you are invited to imagine the sun represented by a globe two feet in diameter, set down in the center of the plain. The earth would be represented by a pea, about 72 yards away from the globe, with the moon by a mustard seed seven inches from the pea. Venus and Mercury, nearer the sun than the earth, must be marked by shot grains Nos. 6 and 7. Mars by a grain No. 4. Jupiter by a person's egg at long rifle range, Saturn by a small apple, quite out of range and Neptune, the remotest known planet of the solar system, by a plain one mile and a quarter from the two foot globe representing the sun. Such an arrangement, with sprinkling of pepper grains to represent the asteroids, would constitute a map of the solar system, that is to say, of the celestial family "limited" to which we ourselves belong. With regard to the nearest systems—our next door neighbors, so to speak—even a scale so liberal fails us instantly; the earth's surface rolled out flat, would not be wide enough to admit into the chart the brightest of the fixed stars. To put down Sirius in his right place, he should be forty thousand miles away from the two-foot globe representing the sun! And this is only on minute scale, the sun which is more than 85,000 miles in diameter, being represented by a globe only two feet in diameter. The true interval between the shining star and the earth is so prodigious that light, which travels seven times round our globe in a second and reaches us from the sun in eight minutes, takes twenty-three years in making the journey from Sirius to our eyes!

Our greatest interest, however, is in the little pea, which represents the earth, 72 yards from the two-foot globe. The pea corresponds to an orb nearly 8,000 miles in diameter, and the 72 yards a real distance from the sun of about 92 millions of miles.

Local Happenings

Mrs. Lee A. McConnell visited her parents, J. L. and M. E. Overton, this week.

H. M. Overton and family are at Ocean Park, and will occupy his cottage there until he can rent it.

Mr. and Mrs. Johns, who recently bought a house from W. J. Jones on I street between Fourth and Fifth, have moved into their new home.

Miss Bercaw, who has been teaching for the last two years at El Toro, Orange County, has been spending a week's vacation at her home in Glendale.

Dr. George H. Worrell, a prominent dentist of Santa Clara, with Mrs. Worrell, dined with Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Lukens, on Verdugo Road, Friday evening.

"Charley" Hézmalhalch is building a neat cottage on Fourth street, near Verdugo Road. This probably presages an interesting social item in the near future.

Mr. O. S. Grant, who has been visiting his father at Sixth and Verdugo Road for the past three months, left at 8:15 Friday evening for his home in Nebraska.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Mills leave next week for Nova Scotia, having sold out their chicken raising outfit on the Fox place, east of Verdugo Road on Fourth street.

The plumbing firm of Eves & Wilkinson has leased the skating rink and will move their store there from their present quarters in the Watson building, about June 1st.

Dr. Margaret Lewis, who is on a vacation from missionary and hospital work in India, and has been stopping at the Hotel Glendale for some weeks, leaves this week for her old home in Iowa.

Mr. F. H. Ellers has sold to Scott W. Johnson a piece of land on B street south of Seventh, containing about an acre and a new six-room house. Price understood to be about $4,000.

The Board of Trade folder, of which ten thousand have been printed, is very neat in appearance, and contains in concise form much matter of interest. There were about 3000 of them distributed at Casa Verdugo on Shriners' Day.

Mr. R. E. Agnew, with his family, have located on Verdugo Road, south of Fourth street. He left St. Louis, Mo., one week ago, and will make his home in Glendale. He is a fine carpenter and contractor, and did some of the finishing work on Mr. Brand's mountain home when it was being built.

Mr. A. S. Dodge, of Verdugo Road, while irrigating his lemon orchard the other day, left his vest containing a considerable sum of money, a watch and some papers of value, hanging on a tree. When he looked for it some time afterwards, it was gone. Mr. Dodge has got no trace of his property since.

Among the Shriners who visited Casa Verdugo on Monday was Mr. W. H. Seaman, formerly County Supt. of Schools. Mr. Seaman was well acquainted with our Valley 20 years ago and expressed his amazement at its development. He is now in the real estate business and thinks that the benefit Southern California will receive from the Shriner visitation will be very great.

Street Supt. Sinclair is preparing to get apparatus for testing road oil. We wish that we might have an inspector of oil and gasoline which we burn in our lamps and stores. The proportion of water to oil is entirely too large for safety. It would seem as though our merchants who handle the adulterated stuff ought to take some steps to protect their patrons and themselves.

The Committee of City Trustees on the purchase of fire apparatus are busy these days looking into the merits of hose carts, engines and hose. The chemical engine will probably be selected and it is something of a question whether best to have one large or two smaller ones. If two are secured they would be kept in different places and could be readily managed, with a double probability of their being nearer the point wanted.

Mr. Danford, clerk for Kober & Tarr, was made happy by the arrival of his wife from their eastern home this week. The young couple had been married but a few days before Mr. Danford left for California, so that the occasion seemed to a few of the ladies of the neighborhood to deserve some special action with a view of making it seem like a home coming to a bride. Consequently the house Mr. Danford had secured for their home was decorated beautifully upon her arrival with a profusion of flowers and made attractive and homelike by those little details which the ladies so well understand.

SCHOOL DIRECTORS' MEETING.

The Board of Trustees of the Glendale School District, held a meeting Wednesday evening. The principal business of the meeting was to decide in regard to teachers. It was decided to request the present force of teachers to retain their positions during the coming year.

Two additional teachers will be employed for the coming year, who have not yet been selected.

Mr. G. E. Williams was appointed trustee to fill out the year, in place of Mr. Ben H. Nichols, resigned. It is interesting to note that the number of children in the district, between 5 and 17 years of age, is 429; while last year there were only 294. This number includes children in Sycamore Canon and around Casa Verdugo, who are not within the city limits.

Public Library.

The library has received a new installment of books (fifty) from Sacramento. Looking over the list we are impressed with the excellent selection of the volumes. There is an apparent effort made to select works dealing with the varied branches of literature: Science, Biography, the Useful Arts, Fiction, etc. Naturally there is more fiction than anything else, but it is judiciously selected, not comprising any of the newest works, which we regard as a merit. Mrs. Blackburn reports that the principal demand seems to be for old magazines with which the library is well supplied. The ladies at their next club meeting intend to make an effort to make arrangements to keep the room open every afternoon, a move which will add greatly to its usefulness.

Concert Proceeds

Mr. Albright reports the total receipts of the concert in the skating rink for the Shriners' reception fund to have been $138.45. After paying out about forty dollars for ribbon for the badges, and some other expenses, there was a net balance of $60.40, which is a very satisfactory showing.

M. E. CHURCH NOTES.

On Tuesday evening occurred our third quarterly meeting. A sermon of unusual clearness and power was preached by Dr. S. A. Thomson, P. E. to a congregation of about 25 persons who were deeply moved by the eloquence of the speaker. Following this was the quarterly conference which evidenced real harmony and success in the various lines of work in the charge.

Thursday evening prayer meeting was well attended and was followed by the official board meeting.

A very large number of the young people in our S. S. are members of the I. O. G. T. order which order is doing real good in the line of its regular work and should be encouraged.

On Sabbath there will be the usual services of our church with preaching by the pastor at eleven o'clock. Subject, "The Will of God with the Results from doing the same." In the evening the anniversary of the Epworth League will be observed with service by the young people at 7:30.

The W. F. M. S. will hold their regular monthly meeting in the church on Tuesday at 2 o'clock. Much important business must be attended to as it is the last meeting before the district convention which meets here May 22, 23.

Cottage pray meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Turner on Tuesday evening at 8th and Verdugo. Special blessings are enjoyed through these meetings. You are invited to be present.

The conference, special revival meeting at which Rev. Smith and Rev. Henderson are to be present will be held May 30 and 31, in the 1st M. M. Church, Los Angeles. The time should be noted. It will be an opportunity of great good.

Our next communion service will be June 2nd. June 9th will be reception day. Persons having united with the church on probation will be received into full connection on that day, June 30th will be all day temperance day.

The pastor has word that his mother is slowly but surely passing down into the "valley of the shadow of death." She is 88 years old and has been a member of the M. E. church for about 74 years.

Prof. Kacles of the U. S. C. will deliver the annual educational sermon here on Sabbath evening, May 19th, at 7:30. No collection on this occasion for this object.

Robbery

On Tuesday evening last, while the occupants of the houses were absent in Los Angeles attending the Fiesta, the residences of E. V. Parker, F. A. Albright, C. H. Temple and C. B. Guenthart were entered by burglars and ransacked. The method of working seems to indicate that it was the work of amateurs, and there is room for suspicion that it was done by some persons who live among us.

In some cases the houses seem to have been pretty thoroughly examined, but not much of any value taken, the object apparently being to find money, and in this they were not very successful; not sufficiently so, one would think, to warrant the risk taken of landing in the penitentiary.

In one case the burglars cut the netting on the screen porch and opened the porch door, then unlocked the inner door; but were evidently scared away before they accomplished anything else. In another instance a pane of glass was removed and the window opened.

Our householders should be on their guard, particularly on such occasions as the Fiesta or the circus, when so many leave their houses unprotected. Meanwhile we are afraid that there are some of our floating population who will bear watching, and it is about time that Glendale should pay a city marshal money enough to warrant his devoting some time to our protection.

La Fiesta

"La Fiesta de Las Flores" for 1907 is being brought to a finish as we go to press. The weather department has been kindly disposed; the vast quantity of flowers available for decorations has never before been equalled; never was such perfect art shown in the construction of floats and never before was such an immense crowd in attendance at the festivities.

One feature which has always delighted spectators whenever it appeared in times past, was missing this year; and that was the Chinese dragon. The great gaudy, wobbly creature a block long, that Chinatown used to contribute to the show, was always a tremendous success. We can recall no other attractive feature of Fiestas past, however, which was not in evidence this year, even more attractive than of old. The fire department excelled all former efforts, and its decorations were attractive in the extreme; the miniature conflagration on wheels with the fire lady half way up the ladder bearing in his arms a female form clad in her trailing garments of the night, was an inspiration well portrayed. As for the electrical display and the Shriners marching, they were features beyond the praise of cold type.

Till you come again, "La Reine de Las Flores de Los Angeles," adios!

Polo Match

The Glendale boys who compose the polo-on-skates team, went down to Long Beach Thursday night to play the Long Beach team at the rink there. They were accompanied by a crowd of friends who went to see the sport. Long Beach won by a score of 4 to 2, a result not at all surprising when it is taken into consideration that the Long Beach team is composed of seasoned experts who have had the benefit of much practice at their home rink.

The Glendale team was composed of Clarence Edwards, 1st rush; Harry Wilde, 2nd rush; Lyell Puckett, goal tender; Ed McWatty, half-back; Jas. Perry, center; Jason Haynes, substitute.

TROPICO SCHOOL CENSUS.

Prof. C. E. Higbee reports an increase in the census of the Tropico schools, 295 children between the ages of five and seventeen and 130 under five.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

King's Daughter Day was most delightfully as well as appropriately observed by the Thursday Afternoon Club, at the residence of Mrs. William A. Thompson, with an all-day gathering. Members of the King's Daughters organization, which existed several years since, were the guests of the club, a large number of infant and children's garments were made, which will be received most gladly by the little people of the Day Nursery in Los Angeles.

Merry conversation kept rhythm to the plying of busy fingers and flying needles. On the vine clad verandas tables were arranged where a bounteous lunch was served. Mrs. H. N. Jarvis, a former resident of Tropico was present from Los Angeles and contributed to a most interesting program with a talk in the Day Nursery. During Mrs. Jarvis' residence in Tropico, she was president of the local organization of King's Daughters and was most prominent and instrumental in establishing the Day Nursery in Los Angeles.

Mrs. T. M. Turnbull, matron of the Day Nursery, interested the ladies in a pleasing discussion regarding the Day Nursery.

Mrs. John Hobbs and Mrs. Andrew Stephenson contributed a vocal duett, Miss Maude Moore a vocal solo, Miss Annie Augspurger, Miss Frances Erskine and Miss Adaline Thompson instrumental music. At the close of the business session the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Mrs. A. W. Collins, president; Mrs. Andrew Stephenson, vice president; Mrs. W. H. Bullis, secretary; Miss Maude Moore, treasurer.

GOOD ROADS.

The editor attended the Good Roads Convention week before last in Los Angeles and was impressed by the earnestness with which the promoters of the idea are going about their work. It was stated that a bond issue of $3,000,000 would cost the tax payers the sum of one dollar per year on every $1,000 of valuation. In Riverside county roads costing $200,000 represent a tax equivalent to about one-third of a box of oranges yearly. Judge Works favored a single bond issue and believed in the theory that all the people should pay for all the roads.

Mr. Baumgart, who recently returned from Europe, gave an interesting talk on European roads. He stated that all roads in Europe are not good; the roads of Russia are notably bad and he had found bad roads in Italy, notwithstanding the famous Appian Way which has stood 2000 years. The best roads are in Norway where they are cut out of the solid rock in many places; the land owner being held responsible for the condition of the road aligning his property. Petitions were circulated with a request to obtain signatures, asking the Supervisors to call an election to vote on the question of issuing road bonds.
